

East Sussex College Group

Local Offer for students with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND)

Your child has been at school and is now moving on to college. Moving from school to college is a step towards the world of work and/or greater independence.

It is an exciting time but we understand that you and your child may feel anxious about the change. We know that parents, carers and young people often have questions about how colleges can support them.

It may help you to know that there are a few main differences between college and school:

- A full-time programme at college may be less than five days a week and the times may vary.
- Funding for colleges is different from the way that schools are funded and may also vary between different types of colleges. Because of these differences, it may be that some of the support given to a young person at college will not be the same as it was in school.
- College is not just about delivering education and training, it is also helping young people progress into adulthood by developing their personal, social and employability skills and encouraging greater independence.

If you have any questions that are not answered below or you would like to discuss any of the answers please get in touch and we will be happy to talk to you.

1. How does the college know if young people need extra help and what should I do if I think my child/young person may have special educational needs?

- Through information given on the application form, reference from school and at the interview.

- Through contact with parents and carers, and with the previous school. Additionally, for those with more complex needs, we have contact with the Transition Service or other professionals involved with the young person (<https://www.eastsussex.gov.uk/childrenandfamilies/specialneeds/becoming-an-adult/transition/about/>) and/or the ISEND Assessment and Planning team (<https://www.eastsussex.gov.uk/childrenandfamilies/specialneeds/sen/ehc-assessment/asking/>)
- All students will have a form of initial assessment. Additionally, for those with more complex needs, specialist assessments are available through the Learning Support team.
- At any point in the year concerns can be raised with course, or personal tutors, or direct with the Learning Support Team.

2. How will college staff support my child/young person?

- All students are allocated a personal tutor within their Curriculum teams.
- The Additional Learning Support teams assess and provide support around barriers to learning, including physical and medical needs, as well as learning difficulties.
- The Welfare team monitor and deal with issues related to attendance, safeguarding and concerns linked to emotional or mental health.
- During the initial assessment for additional support, young people have an opportunity to identify the type of support they feel will be most helpful.

3. How will the curriculum be matched to my child's/young person's needs?

- The curriculum offer includes a range of courses and pathways to suit the needs and aspirations of individual learners. Initial advice and guidance is available to help appropriate choices to be made.
- Differentiation, which is adapting lessons to suit individual learning styles, enables support for students who need it and greater challenge for high achieving students.
- Other reasonable adjustments can be made on an individual basis, including assessment arrangements. Please contact the College to discuss.
- We aim to provide approaches that meet the need of all students, whether this is modified language for those with communication difficulties or to ensure young people are stretched and challenged. Alternative methods of assessment are available, including the use of aural or pictorial methods.

4. How will both you and I know how my child/young person is doing and how will you help me to support my child's/young person's learning?

- All students will have an individual learning plan (ILP) which provides key information about targets, attendance and progress with their studies.
